

Sometimes LaTeXs float positioning mechanism gets overloaded, and all floating figures and tables drift to the end of the document.

One may flush out all the unprocessed floats by issuing a `\clearpage` command, but this has the effect of making the current page end prematurely.